TWO BRIDGEHEADS CARRY TROOPS OF AMERICAN 1ST ARMY ACROSS RHINE AT REMAGEN; 14 ENGINEERS ARE KILLED WHILE CONSTRUCTING A 200 - PONTOON BRIDGE

ork Throughout the Night and Until Dusk Under Heavy Fire

EARING A HIGHWAY Germans Send 160 'Planes To Bomb and Strafe Bridgehead

(By International News Service)

At least two bridges carried troops of the American First Army across the Rhine today at the Remagen bridgehead, where advances of 200 yards cut the first north-south highway east of the river.

N. S. war correspondent Lee reported that 14 American engineer troops were killed while constructing a 200-pontoon bridge across the Rhine. They worked throughout one night and until dusk next day, through almost constant German artillery, mortar and machine-gun fire and attacks by Nazi raiding planes.

German radio commentators said that virtually the entire First Army had been moved into the bridgehead where it was ready to blast into the Rhine. One broadcast said the Germans were getting ready to make another crossing of the Rhine between Bonn and Emmerich. Front dispatches said that the American First Army, besides cutting one German highway, had pressed on to within two miles of a big six-lane highway serving the Ruhr.

The Germans said that the American high command had advanced toward the Remagen bridgehead, but that the American action had prevented cutting of the big transport route.

In the first five days of fighting at the Rhine, the Germans lost over 160 airplanes to bomb and strafed the American bridgehead. Seventy-four of these were shot down by First Army anti-aircraft gunners. Twenty more were probably destroyed, while several others were damaged.

South of the Remagen bridgehead, troops of the American Third Army continued to squeeze down the size of the German pocket north of the Moselle River. It is now about four miles square.

Third Army troops made general advances of up to two and one-half miles.

UP-TO-PRESS-TIME WAR BULLETINS

(By International News Service)

PUSH TO BALTIC COAST BY REDS IS IN THE MAKING

Moscow—A great Red Army semi-circular push to the Baltic coast at the bay of Danzig, severing and cornering already battered German forces, seemed in the making today as Russian victories in the Danzig-Gdynia area were followed by German claims that a great new Soviet offensive had been launched toward the Baltic southwest of Loenisberg. A German DNB commentator declared that the Russians had unleashed new blows on both sides of Zinten, 12 miles from the Baltic and about 20 miles southwest of Loenisberg.

The Nazi claim was made just as other German broadcasts said that fierce fighting was raging on the Oder front facing Berlin.

AMERICANS STORM INTO KALENBORN

With U. S. First Army Forces—American tank and infantry stormed into the German town of Kalenborn, five miles east of the Rhine, today and battled their way well inside.

The prize in this assault is one of the largest supply and ammunition dumps in the Rhineland.

In a dawn attack, the First Army forces, backed by tanks, crossed 1,000 yards of rough, timbered country and rushed into Kalenborn in a surprise assault.

Kalenborn is almost due east of Honnell, on the east bank of the Rhine, and more than five and one-half miles northeast of Remagen, where the Ludendorff bridge spans the waterway.

State Police at Quakertown and Bethlehem today are continuing their search for a pair of bold highway men who held up four coal trucks, one of them Clyde Heath, Willow Grove, early Saturday morning, and relieved three of them of cash totaling $375.

Heath, one of the three accosted by the highwaymen, was stopped along route 309, between Quakertown and Coopersburg, and robbed of $125. Heath, it is said, was the last of the quartet of coal truck drivers to have been accosted. He was stopped about 5:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

The truck driver from Willow Grove told investigating officers the robbers halted him to stop along Route 309, and then threatened him with guns while they took the money.

POST-WAR PLANNING DISCUSSED BY WOMEN

Lower Bucks County Council of Republican Women Hears Mrs. Arensmeyer

GIVES OUT QUERIES

The subject of post-war planning was discussed at a meeting of the Lower Bucks County Council of Republican Women last evening, at which the president, Mrs. David M. Sheerer, Jr., presided.

During the business meeting, it was agreed that council make substantial contributions to the American Red Cross and to the youth canteen of Bristol.

An interesting feature of the evening was a talk given by Mrs. Adolph Ancker, chairman of the youth canteen. She told in detail of the inception and organization of this project; of the splendid co-operation she and her committees have received from both individuals and organizations; of the many donations, furniture, games, etc., so generously given to them, and of steadily increasing membership. To date 2146 young folks have attended the canteen; about 700 are registered, and each of the three nights weekly when the building is open for their enjoyment, the canteen is well attended. Mrs. Ancker stated they are in need of more hosts and hostesses, as 12 are required to serve each week.

The main portion of the meeting was in charge of Mrs. William H. Arensmeyer, chairman of post-war planning, who took for her theme "Peace." Mrs. Earl H. Tomb and Mrs. Walter W. Fitznoka assisted in conveying to the members, Mrs. Arensmeyer's carefully compiled findings on this subject.

Mrs. Arensmeyer distributed several questions in this connection to be pondered by members and discussed at the next meeting.

Council is planning a food exchange at the April meeting, and members are looking forward with much anticipation to the May meeting at which time Mrs. Hannah Durham, Pa. chairman of political activities, and the only woman on the post-war planning committee in Pennsylvania, will be the speaker.

The hospitality committee served refreshments.

KEEPING THE LAMP TRIMMED

There is one grim end in sight to the "Good-Time Charlie" role which Uncle Sam has been playing for twelve years under the direction of the New Dealers. That end is the failure of national credit.

Billions upon billions have been ladled out with lavish hand—billions borrowed against the next two or three generations, to be repaid only by taxes squeezed out of the earnings of men and women not yet born.

The injustice and immorality of spending someone else's money this way, merely because—not being born—they can't kick about it, and the folly of pretending that any such fiscal policies can be, as the New Deal planners such as Wallace, Roosevelt and Byrnes assume, made into a workable permanent economy, are beside the point at the moment.

Even Harry Hopkins hasn't found any way of repealing the laws of economics, any more than those of gravity. There is a very definite limit to the practical borrowing capacity of any organization, including the United States government.

Just where that limit lies no one agrees. That we are dangerously close to it is self-evident.

What will happen when the "inexhaustible" supply of Federal borrowing reaches its end?

There can be no complete answer. Much depends on circumstances. There may be a panic and crash, or merely a depression of a new and irresistible type.

One thing is obvious. At some time in the future—and it may be sooner than is realized—some form of governmental units other than the Federal may have to take over much of the operation of the current functions of civilized community life, simply because the Federal government will no longer have capital with which to operate.

It may easily be that by some such process the smaller units of government will resume the importance which the American Constitution intended.

State Governments, for example, now largely shorn of States' Rights by the New Deal, could return to their place in the sun if the time came when the national government was insolvent and they were not.

The fiscal position of most state governments is ex-

KILLED BY CAR DRIVEN BY SAILOR

Morrisville Lad Was Watching Fire Engines Going To A Grass Fire

FUNERAL TOMORROW

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 14—Louis Schwalm, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schwalm, of 422 West Bridge street, Morrisville, died Monday in Mercer Hospital, Trenton, from internal injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile early Sunday evening.

The boy, watching fire engines answer a call to a field fire near his home, ran out into the street to see if there were any more coming and was struck by an automobile driven by William May, a sailor just back from overseas duty. May, who resides at 20 Osborne street, Morrisville, told police he was unaware of the accident until he looked back and saw a crowd gathered around the lad.

Rushed to Mercer Hospital, the boy never regained consciousness. He was a pupil of the first grade at William E. Case School, Morrisville.

Funeral services will be held from his home Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

May was released on his own recognizance for a hearing on April 2nd on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. Officer Andrew Thompson investigated.

RED CROSS WAR FUND NOW TOTALS $20,130

Approximately $37,000 Is Still Needed For Bristol Area To Reach Quota

CANTEEN CORPS WORK

A total of $20,130 has thus far been received in the campaign in the Bristol area to raise $56,600 for the Red Cross War Fund. This total represents money received from all sources.

If disaster strikes in the Bristol area, citizens can count on 16 local members of the Red Cross Canteen Corps for mass feeding of stricken people, according to Mrs. David M. Sheerer, Jr., Canteen Corps chairman of Bristol American Red Cross.

"Training and constant community service keep our volunteers ready for an emergency such as would be caused by a great fire or natural disaster," Mrs. Sheerer explained.

More than 106,000 women throughout the nation belong to Red Cross Canteen Corps. Mrs. Sheerer said. They serve food to men of the armed forces at docks, flying fields and railway stations, whenever needed. They serve lunches to school children in 200 communities. They engage in canteen projects. They prepare meals or refreshments at many war plants, blood donor centers and chapter house canteens.

"Every community benefits by having a Canteen Corps," Mrs. Sheerer declared. "And since all Canteen Corps are organized primarily for disaster relief, the volunteer hours served by local members last year constitute experience gained for the protection of every man, woman and child in Bristol."

PFC ROBT. SWANGLER WOUNDED IN GERMANY

Edgely Infantryman Advises Parents He Is Now In England

PVT. M. BROWN HURT

An Edgely soldier and a Croydon soldier are listed as wounded in the present global war.

PFC Robert E. Swangler, of the army infantry, has informed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Swangler, Edgely avenue, Edgely, that he suffered a wound in action in Germany, adding that he is "doing fine." He is now hospitalized in England.

The 22-year-old infantryman entered the service in March, 1944, and went abroad last November. Previous to training at Camp McCoy, Wisconsin, he was employed by Fleetwings, Division of Kaiser Cargo, Inc. He is a graduate of Bristol high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Brown, Croydon, received word from the War Department that their son, Pvt. Martin Brown, was wounded in action in Germany on February 23rd.

The young man, 18 years of age, had been in action only nine days. He entered the Army forces on September 5th and received his basic training in Texas.

Souvenirs Must Be Received With Caution

"Recent reports and several newspaper articles indicate that some souvenirs sent home or brought home by members of our Armed Forces have proved to be live ammunition, while others have turned out to be cleverly contrived 'booby traps,'" states Ralph Cooper Hutchison, executive director, Pa. State Council of Defense.

"Although care is exercised by military and naval officials and by postal authorities to examine each package sent home by troops in the field, nevertheless some very dangerous souvenirs have arrived in the United States and caused casualties.

"The following articles are dangerous and should be handled as little as possible by recipients until they have been examined by qualified experts and pronounced safe: Live ammunition of any kind, brass shell cases from which the primer at the base has not been removed, hand grenades of any type.

"In general, any article which has been constructed to be a container or which might be used as a container for explosives.

"Persons who receive any of the above listed articles, or any other suspicious looking articles, should submit them at once to a critical inspection by someone who is qualified to make it."

Tells of Men, Equipment Expended on Operation

PFC John K. DeLong, of the U. S. Marine Corps, who is stationed on Iwo Jima, writes to members of his family on Pond street as follows:

I am very happy to be alive. I have been on this rock (Iwo Jima) for a week now. Our outfit has secured its objective, the volcano on the end of the island. Boy, I am telling you that I am really proud to be part of the 28th Marine Regiment. It is a crack outfit.

I feel fine with the exception of the dirt. We haven't been able to wash as yet.

I never realized how many men and how much equipment was expended in an operation of this sort. If people could just see where their money is going they wouldn't be going on strikes.

We are still under enemy fire, and it seems like it is night all the time.

Take care of yourselves and keep praying.

I will be home as soon as this mess is cleaned up.

Your loving son,

JACK.

TALBOT COMPANY DEFENDANTS IN A SUIT BY THE OPA

"Triple Damage" Suit For $90,000 Alleges Firm Sold Above Ceiling Prices

WOOL YARN SPINNERS

OPA Alleges Firm Got More Than $30,000 in Overceilinging Prices Since Last Year

By International News Service PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 14—Joseph E. and George E. Talbot, spinners of wool yarns, today were defendants in an OPA "triple damage" suit for $90,000 on allegations that their firm, The Talbot Worsted Mills Company, Philadelphia, had been selling yarns at more than ceiling prices.

OPA Attorney Sydney M. Friedman said the concern secured more than $30,000 in overceilinging prices since March 15 last in the sale of various kinds of wool yarns by fixing the price of its goods as though "domestic wool" were used when in fact mostly imported wool, which is less expensive than the domestic types, was used.

Friedman contended the yarns were sold mainly to sweater manufacturers and to producers of woolen cloth, and that the "above ceiling" charges ultimately were reflected in the retail prices of finished garments.

The OPA also petitioned court for an injunction to restrain the firm from continuing to charge more than ceiling prices.

MORE ON COLDS

Despite repeated disappointments laymen still have faith that the medical profession some day will solve the baffling mystery of the common cold. Otherwise each new addition to the growing pile of literature on that subject would not be scanned with hopeful interest. It would be left to gather dust like the others.

The latest contribution to the discussion comes from Capt. Edward E. Brown, Army Medical Corps port surgeon at Portland, Oregon. Writing in Northwest Medicine, he reports that 13 years spent studying colds have convinced him that most of them are not caused by a virus but by streptococci. Approximately 90 per cent of all colds, according to his experience, are streptococcus colds.

This is an encouraging conclusion because sulfa drugs are effective against these bacteria. Moreover, Dr. Brown suggests that cold vaccines prepared from streptococci might be effective in treatment, whereas it is known definitely that virus vaccines are not effective against colds.

Most heartening is the fact that Dr. Brown's conclusions seem to dovetail with the testimony of Army and Navy doctors' reports showing that daily doses of sulfadiazine present 70 to 90 per cent of upper respiratory infections in more than half a million men. Maybe the profession is at last on the right trail.

The problem has not been solved. The chances are that it will be a long time before science arrives at a complete solution. But most persons would be satisfied to be rid of 90 per cent of their share of colds.

CHICKEN CRISIS IN GOTHAM

New York City seems to be headed for a first-class crisis in poultry supplies. The city receives 80 per cent of its poultry from Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, a region that normally produces 40 per cent of the nation's market poultry.

An embargo on civilian supplies from that area apparently will not be lifted until the Army makes up a lag of 110,000,000 pounds for military and lend-lease needs. It is estimated that this will take from eight to ten weeks.

Meanwhile, the housewives of New York who had been making progress in swinging members of their families to a poultry diet are in a dilemma. Scarcity of chicken in Gotham has been aggravated by two factors: Restaurants and hotels, with other meats difficult to obtain, are serving more chicken, and demand by housewives has decimated reserves.

A few consumers consider it fortunate that occasionally chickens are too old to pass the government test. These are bought with alacrity by housewives.

On future maps, Berlin will be a speck where a city stood before the advent of Hitler the Hun.

Canada has no curfew or food rationing. Don't they know there's a war on?

cellent Compared with national indebtedness, state debt is infinitesimal.

Many States, such as Pennsylvania, are operating with surpluses, and many—again including Pennsylvania—are planning to use these excess funds for the further reduction of debts already relatively small.

Through their state government, the citizens of Pennsylvania owe a debt of less than $10 apiece, compared with approximately $2000 each owed through the national government.

The favorable picture of Pennsylvania finances has a political angle. The New Deal financial schemes were tried out here during the Earle Administration, and quickly produced a deficit-program quite comparable to that of the national government.

Six years ago the Republican Party was again entrusted with the operation of State affairs, and the result of the successive administrations of two Republican governors has been the balancing of the state's books, the reduction of taxes and the elimination of deficits.

In the smaller governments in Pennsylvania—cities, counties, boroughs and townships—there is no uniformity. Some, like Philadelphia, have top-heavy debts, with revenues which have been shrinking through no particular fault of the city itself.

Many other communities have been caught by the shutting off of revenue from previously important industrial operations—some closed by the depression, some war victims, some curtailed by the reshifting of industry in which certain New Dealers have been especially interested.

But most Pennsylvania counties are in good shape. County debts are small. Moderate tax levels are proving adequate for current operations.

Likewise the great majority of townships and boroughs are like most of those in Bucks county—well caught up on their debts, thrifty in their operations, able to do what the Federal government has consistently failed to live within their income.

The future may easily bring a new period when large-scale borrowing will be imperative for the welfare of the nation, to tide through a temporary emergency.

Should such an occasion arise, it might be disastrous for it to be discovered that the credit pitcher of the Federal government has gone too often to the well.

It would unquestionably be disastrous for such a credit-failure to occur if there were no other governmental units whose credit was good—units which have demonstrated that they know more about handling money than merely how to get rid of it.

The despised local governments, long the target of abuse of the spending-minded New Dealers, may be moving into a position where they can pick up the pieces after the New Deal finds itself insolvent.

Today's Quiet Moment

By Major Andrew George Solla

Somewhere in England

Great and Eternal God, our Father, keep Thy children strong in body and soul during these days of temptation and danger, which abound all around them. May they have their eyes set on Him who was tempted at all points, yet without sin. Grant that in the turmoil of these sad and uncertain days they may hear His blessed voice as the disciples heard it on the Sea of Galilee, "Be not afraid, it is I," and thus have their aching hearts soothed and their fears calmed.

This we ask in the name of our Precious Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

Smoother...and better

• In music... there's nothing like a waltz to set your heart to singing.
In milk... there's nothing like Supplee Sealtest Homogenized Vitamin D Milk to relax and refresh you.

• For this is the smoother milk, the better milk that tastes richer because there's cream in every drop. It's appetizing, it's satisfying... Sealtest Homogenized Vitamin D Milk is so different that it has made many a "milk-drinker" out of children, and grown-ups as well, who never really relished milk before.

• It's nice to know, too, that Sealtest Homogenized Vitamin D Milk is tops in nutrition. Nature's marvelous combination of healthful proteins, vitamins and minerals has been improved by homogenizing. For this modern, scientific process breaks up the food particles—makes this better milk easier to digest. That's why so many doctors recommend it.

• If you're not already drinking and enjoying Sealtest Homogenized Vitamin D Milk in your house, you really ought to try it. Ask your Supplee milk man or woman, or your neighborhood storekeeper for this smoother, better milk today.

TO MAKE EFFORT TO BOOST PHEASANT BREEDING STOCK

One Dozen Hen Pheasants Are To Be Purchased At Once

56 ATTEND MEETING

Association Adopts Bounty Program of Its Own On Foxes

In an effort to increase the breeding stock and thereby provide better shooting for hunters in this section the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association last evening made provision to immediately purchase one dozen hen pheasants.

This action was taken when 56 members of the Association met at the Odd Fellows' Hall in monthly business session. President Frank B. Murphy was in charge of the meeting.

The Association also adopted a bounty program of its own on foxes. Every member of the Association will be paid one dollar for each fox he kills during 1945. The Game Committee will act as the clearing station for the report of foxes killed. The dollar will be paid on both the red and the gray fox.

As an added tribute to its members now serving in the armed services the Association will buy a service flag for display at each meeting. At the present moment there are 35 members in the armed services, and one gold star for one former member who died in uniform.

William Bossler, game committee chairman, reported that the Association rabbit trapping program has been completed for this season. He stated that next year the Association plans a greatly expanded program. This was the first year the Association took part in the Game Commission program and approximately 25 rabbits were trapped on areas in this immediate vicinity which are permanently closed to gunning. The rabbits were stocked on open hunting territory.

The Fish Committee reported that suckers and yellow perch were biting with a few scattered reports on catches of catfish. The report stated that Bucks County trout streams were in excellent shape and that the Spring stocking of trout in these streams would soon be completed.

The Silver Lake Park committee reported a number of obstacles in the Association's program to have Silver Lake and surrounding area declared a State Park. The Association voted the committee a vote of thanks and asked that the Committee continue its investigations and efforts to have this area declared a State Park.

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 14—At a special meeting of the Eagle Scout Board of Review of the Bucks County Council Boy Scouts of America, Hon. Calvin S. Boyer presiding, Harry S. Hoffman, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Hoffman, of Lower Makefield, and assistant Scoutmaster in Troop No. 10 of Lower Makefield and who is at present in the United States Navy, was advanced to the rank of Eagle Scout. Mr. Hoffman is one of a group of Bucks County Council scouts in the Armed Services who are continuing their work in advancement wherever possible.

It was announced by the council organization committee that three new troops have been registered since the first of the year. They are Carversville, Springtown, which will be installed at a ceremony to be held on Sunday, March 18th, and Richboro, which will be installed on March 22nd.

A Cub conference was held at the council office on Monday evening for the middle area of the council. This group of leaders, who are in charge of the Cub Scout program, are working on a spring and summer program that will give a high percentage of parental participation throughout the council. A conference for Den Mothers will be held at Camp Ockanickon on April 21st and a cub training course for cubbers will be held on the weekend of May 5th and 6th. The fact that a number of new cub packs are being organized throughout the county was also brought out at the meeting.

It was announced that at the end of February, there were 1,182 Boy Scouts enrolled and 398 cubs in the membership of the Bucks County Council, with a total of 400 volunteer scouts and cubbers giving service to the boys of the county through the Boy Scout program.

Two Bridgeheads Carry U. S. 1st Army Troops Across Rhine at Remagen

On the eastern front, Red Army forces closed in on the Germans in the Danzig-Gdynia area of the Baltic coast, capturing numerous new towns and isolating the Hel Peninsula extending into the Bay of Danzig.

The city of Danzig was reported by a Russian frontline correspondent to be aglow with flames. It has been under Russian artillery fire for some time, and the Russian communique said that fierce fighting was under way in the area of the outer perimeter of the Danzig-Gdynia zone.

German reports of fighting on the Oder river front facing Berlin indicated preparations for a new Russian drive on the German capital. The Germans said that battles raged between Kuestrin, which has been taken by the Russians, and Frankfurt, some 40 miles southeast of Berlin.
